Oops – what's gone wrong?

Injury: A worker was at an external site performing loading operations. Unfortunately, not all his feed was ready at the time of loading. The first trailer was loaded, the driver left the loading area to wait in a safe place for the remainder to be prepared. The driver went to roll his tarp over his lead and at that time identified that the load at the rear was above the height of the trailer and the driver couldn't roll the tarp over. He needed to use the ladder extension, driver spun around to go and get it and as he did so he slipped. The driver was in between the trailers and as he was falling, he placed his hand out to protect his head from contacting the trailers and sustained a fracture to his hand. A site worker accessed the lead trailer to apply the tarp over the load and in doing so was identified by the site to not have performed this in a safe manner. Identified during this investigation were several factors: 1. If working in wet conditions in the field – use boots that are fit for working in these conditions. 2. The driver reports that they position the truck slightly off centre under the chute to reverse the combination out easier – The driver to request a spotter at site, site persons to be available to assist with this requirement. 3. The BOL at the external site did not level the load out at the time of loading – BOL and truck driver to communicate to ensure the load is level before departing the BOL area, therefore reducing the need for anyone to undertake any works from height.

Accident: A driver was at a set of red traffic lights, the lights changed to green, and the driver proceeded forward, the car in front appeared to bunny hop and slowed, the truck was not able to stop in time and contacted the rear of the vehicle sustaining damages to the car. Ensure when drivers are proceeding forward that there is sufficient clearance between the two vehicles to perform an emergency stop. Ensure the truck is in the correct gear at take-off.

Warmer Weather:

As we are now getting into the warmer months of the year, we need to be mindful of our hydration and sun protection. When you are out in the sun, please ensure you have sunscreen on and a hat on your head. Always try to seek out shade when you can to avoid dehydration and sunburns. Hydration is extremely important in the warmer months as it is a lot easier to become dehydrated. Please try to make sure you are carrying a water bottle with you and that the water is being drunk as we lose our fluids a lot faster in Summer.
